AWARDS

Award winners at the 2008 AMA National Conference

The recent national conference of the Australian Medical Association in Hobart was the venue for several awards involving the Journal and its editors.

MJA/Wyeth Prize 2007

Vancomycin-resistant enterococci (VRE) often colonise the gastrointestinal tract of hospital patients, particularly those attending renal services. In a double-blind, randomised placebo-controlled trial, Manley and her colleagues demonstrated that a daily dose of commercial yoghurt containing the probiotic Lactobacillus GG strain was effective in eliminating VRE from the bowel.

Dr Michael Lee, Medical Director of Wyeth Australia, presented the award. The MJA thanks Wyeth Australia for its continuing commitment to promoting excellence in Australian clinical research through the prestigious MJA/Wyeth Prize.

Dr Ross Ingram Memorial Essay Prize

This year’s recipient of the Dr Ross Ingram Memorial Essay Prize was Barry Fewquandie, Coordinator of an Indigenous cardiac rehabilitation program in Cairns. His winning essay, ‘The heart of the matter is, that it’s a matter of the heart’ was published in the 19 May 2008 issue of the Journal (MJA 2008; 188: 580-582). It describes Fewquandie’s personal journey of recovery after acute coronary syndrome, his work in cardiac rehabilitation and his passion for improving the cardiovascular health of Indigenous Australians. In presenting the prize, MJA editorial staff were joined by three members of the late Dr Ross Ingram’s family.

AMA President’s Award

Dr Martin Van Der Weyden, MJA Editor since 1995 and Chief Executive Officer of the Australasian Medical Publishing Company since 1996, was formally recognised for his “services to the Medical Journal of Australia, the medical profession and the AMA” with the 2008 AMA President’s Award. This award is given to an individual who has made an outstanding contribution towards fostering the objectives of the AMA in pursuit of a better health system for Australia. In presenting the award, AMA President, Dr Rosanna Capolingua said Dr Van Der Weyden has “enjoyed a distinguished, 30-year career in medical practice, teaching and medical administration and ensured the continuing reputation of the Medical Journal of Australia as Australia’s premier peer-reviewed medical journal. He has also managed to raise the profile of medical science and the profession by making the Journal more relevant to general audiences by publishing thematic coverage of medical issues”.
